

The Writers Bloc Club

Assignments in Prose and Poetry

An Anthology

This book contains 62 prose pieces and 52 poems. Most are from assignments from the Writers' Bloc Club. A few are optional pieces. The support and instructional critiques of this club have helped improve my writing. It has also caused me to write on topics I would not have written on otherwise.

Although writing is a solo endeavor, it is immensely helpful to have fellow writers to share and critique my work. I thank them for all their input. This is my first anthology. I expect there will be more in the future.

Frosty THE SOULMAN

BY

DON LUBOV

Frosty was born following a snowstorm. He reveled in his youth and basked in the glory of being worshipped by others. Diagnosed as terminal at lunch, he died and was resurrected shortly thereafter and finally became enlightened.

In 612 words, Frosty the Soulman experiences the wonder of creation, the joy of popularity, the pain of abandonment, a cruel death, transcendence and enlightenment.

As a picture book Frosty introduces important concepts to the young reader. His story of life is inspirational in a generic sense that appeals to both secular and religious audiences.

The Plague

Civilization's Near Self-Destruction

Science Fiction

by Don Lubov

The year is 2040. Robots have been safely and efficiently introduced into society. They are an integral part of our world, when a pandemic of global proportions arrives.

Isolated deaths keep cropping up. Seeming random at first, a pattern begins to emerge. Dave Miller, an investigative reporter, pounces on the story.

He explores his neighborhood and city, and finds death at every turn. His investigation leads to interviews with experts in various fields. Everyone is mystified. People are panicky. The deaths go global. The world is in chaos.

Through his investigations, Dave learns that a most unusual plague is responsible. It is swift and thorough—Three billion people die in six weeks. The immediate questions are: What is causing this epidemic? Why does it affect some of us and not all of us?

As mysteriously and abruptly as it began, the plague stops. Dave's investigation turns from the cause of the disease, to its unexpected aftermath. How to live in the post-plague world is a daily awakening to new strategies.

The effects on our society are startling and significant. The world enters uncharted waters. How will we live? Why will we live? What is the meaning of life, now?

Fast-forward to the year 2133 AD. Several generations have lived in a world without anger. What is that world like? They celebrate it. And yet, something seems amiss? It turns out that behind the scenes, some unsettling events have been taking place. Society has not been the paradise publicly endorsed. How can we live not knowing both sides of the anger coin? Time will tell.

Near Death in the Gila National Forest

An action, travel, adventure, personal growth quest

Memoir

By Don Lubov

When his teaching contract is not renewed, a drug-taking, aimless, university art instructor heads out on a solo backpacking trip across the U.S. Two slick, wealthy drug dealers alter his trip.

It's 1971 and this novice hiker begins a painful series of learning experiences. From a rock concert in the woods, to an invitation to a lynching, to hitching, he plods on, one day at a time, to a purposeless future.

Learning to live in the wild and taking a colorful variety of hitches, he detours to Acapulco, Mexico and a "Big" drug deal. Events beyond his control force him to beat a hasty retreat back to the U.S.

In the midst of wilderness survival in fierce, desert heat and some brief, welcome female companionship, he has a spiritual awakening. Following this event, he gets hopelessly lost in the wild and prepares to die.

Saved from death, he arrives in California, a fitting end to his cross-country trek. His California years include communes, a stabbing, teaching at Stanford and some let-downs. His life lacks direction and meaning.

Finally, 4½ years after leaving the east coast, he senses his purposeful future is in New York. He leaves California, not sadder, but a bit wiser, and heads East to meet his soul-mate and a new beginning.

An End to Stress

A Guru's Guide to Inner Peace

Self-Help

by Don Lubov

"The two most important days in your life are the day you were born and the day you find out why" (M.T.). This book will help you understand the why.

A Guru's Guide to Inner Peace is an informal path, from stress to inner peace. It follows the "Six-Step Path" that has helped thousands of people to live in the present. This guide allows you to accept things as they are, including imperfections in yourself and others.

It guides you to make conscious contact with the non-physical presence within all of us. It encourages you to find your natural gifts and talents and to use them to the best of your abilities. You learn to follow your heart, not your head.

You learn how to make your life your meditation—informal, spontaneous and creative. You become the best you you can be. You are now ripe for a spiritual awakening. You now know that the world is not so much as we find it, but as we make it.

THE SIDE JOB

A desperate mother's solution to saving her daughter

Novel

by Don Lubov

This is the story of Maggie Gomez — an unwed, unskilled mother of a sickly daughter. She lives a hard-scrabble life on the underside of Las Vegas. As her daughter's health deteriorates, Maggie's need for money for an operation skyrockets. Maggie was vulnerable and defeated early in life. Her long-suppressed strength blossoms and Maggie becomes "La Femme Nikita". As Maggie gets more involved with her loan shark boss and his crew, her world begins to spiral out of control. Her simultaneous involvement with a gangster and the detective investigating him turns her life into a soap opera of emotions. She must figure out how to escape her underworld life, protect her daughter, and live happily ever after.
